

Why I reject the 'Trinity Doctrine' and the 'Trinitarian god'

I reject the 'Trinity Doctrine' and the 'Trinitarian god' for the same reason the Jews reject the 'Trinity Doctrine' and the 'Trinitarian god.'

Why do the Jews not believe in the Trinity Doctrine?

Jews do not believe in the Trinity doctrine because it contradicts their fundamental belief in the absolute oneness of God, as emphasized in the Hebrew Scriptures. Additionally, traditional Jewish teachings assert that the concept of a plurality in the Godhead is incompatible with monotheism, which is central to Judaism.

Why do the Jews not believe in the Trinitarian God?

Jews do not believe in the Trinitarian God because they adhere to strict monotheism, which emphasizes the oneness and indivisibility of God, rejecting any notion of God as a duality or trinity. This belief is central to Jewish theology and is seen as incompatible with the concept of the Trinity, which they view as a form of idolatry.
